
Your Car

I use the car mainly for running the kids round now. It's very different from a few years ago, you know, where I'd be doing a bit of cruising in it, but now it's school, back, after school club, footy, swimming...

I could not live for a single day without my car. We did try to get by on one car for a little while but it was a complete disaster. I ended up walking in the rain, kids were crying, it was all very unpleasant. We had a car loan. One of the cars that we've got now, we took out a loan. It was paid off a couple of years ago and we've still got the car. It was a lot less painful than digging eight or nine grand out of your savings account. It would just give you a heart attack to do that. I'd rather just get a loan.

I've never had an accident, but I've had to claim for, unfortunately, my wife has had a couple of accidents in my car, strangely enough, and I lost my no claims bonus twice. Having said that, it's only when you really need to make a claim that you find out how good your insurance really is. It's super important that the service side is there, you know, from your insurance provider. I want it to be a great price, I want it to be easy to apply and buy, preferably online, but I need that back up as well. I need to know there's, you know, a very comprehensive, very good level of cover there to support it all.
